This Agreement entitles you to install the Software Product on any number of computers and to make any number of archival copies. However, this Agreement, in conjunction with the Hardware Key, entitles you to full, unrestricted use of the Software Product and all its features on only one computer a a time. If the Hardware Key is not installed on a computer, the Software Product will run normally for twenty minutes. After that time expires, the program will alert the user that the hardware key is missing by switching the program view to the Summary tab and displaying a warning message. Note that no functionality will be impacted by this warning, other than periodically changing the display so that the warning is visible. This Agreement further restricts you from attempting to defeat or remove the ability of the Hardware Key to enforce this Agreement.

Restrictions on Use

You may not use the full, unrestricted functionality of this Software Product, other than for its initial twenty minute demonstration time period, without the presence of a Hardware Key provided by Original Code Consulting.

In order to enforce the Hardware Key functionality, sections of the source code for this Software Product are protected and unavailable to you. You may not decompile, "reverse engineer", disassemble, or otherwise attempt to derive the restricted sections of source code of the Software Product.
